“ Daryl, Deb, Dalton, and Dailey were like family in Okinawa. Living across the street, playing cards talking and laughing all night long, kids hanging out together, and sharing three years of USMC life together are the happiest memories I have of the Marine Corps. I am deeply saddened at Daryl's passing. He was a kind, gentle, loving soul who was completely dedicated to his family. My sincere condolences to Deb, Dalton, and Dailey. You are all still in my heart!

I consider myself very lucky to have had the opportunity to know Daryl and for him to allow me a glimpse into his family. We had a lot of great conversations in his office (as many did) and I enjoyed talking about a vast array of subjects with him.

When he wasn't teasing me about my substandard John Deere mower, we were working together on projects to make the Detachment better for Marines and their families.

He really was a great person in all aspects of life. Father, Husband, son, friend, mentor and leader.

I am fortunate to have crossed paths with such a great human being.

“ One of the finer points of being in the Marine Corps is that you meet great people, you share both good & trying experiences & you often become more than friends (comparable to family) through those experiences. If there's any drawback to being a Marine, it's that you inevitably receive orders, move on to “greater things” & you frequently lose contact with those great people. Of course, you meet other great people along the way.

Daryl was one of those great Marines. He was a great person. He was a true, natural Leader of Marines and he was wise & caring beyond his years. Daryl was truly an old soul. I learned a great deal from him...although we spent only a very brief period in the same location. I admired him & had a great deal of respect for him...often thinking, “what would Daryl do,” in any given situation.

One of my fondest memories of Daryl involved fishing in the Boundary Waters of northern Minnesota...together with Mike Larsen & Larry Porter. While I don't have a particular story to pass along...I warmly remember at least 7 portages with canoes, a food pack, our individual packs & our fishing gear...and 7 great days of fishing in the wild with some really good guys and a hell of a lot of ticks. We also carried a couple of gallons of alcohol, Crystal Light...and no ice (duh!). Can't stand Crystal Light to this day. Truly one of the best experiences in my lifetime.

No different than anyone else, I lived my life (which seems to have gone by very quickly after I hit my 30's). Regardless, I would think of Daryl every now & again. Quite honestly, I thought that we might connect again...along with Porter & Larsen...and hit the Boundary Waters at least one more time.

Rest in peace, Daryl. Gone way too soon.

You are in my thoughts & prayers, Deb & family.

Thanks Craig. I know what Daryl would say to that... call those guys and do the boundary waters trip. ✂
